It was 2003 when Maria Stahl accepted this position and Brevard CHD excelled under her leadership as evidenced by the awards received. PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

HELLO fellow FAPHN Members!!

I am thrilled to be in the role of President for the Florida Association of Public Health Nurses! Every year, this Association continues to thrive even with some of the most difficult economical times we have seen in our lifetime. This is thanks to all of our dedicated members who know how important it is for Public Health Nurses and their associates to have a voice for the Health of our population.

Last year, Stephanie Vick, President, said we have three choices: "We can allow the current situation to affect our progress and growth; we can 'tread water' and try to maintain a static condition whereby we do no more and no less than we are currently doing; or we can do what public health nurses have done all along and that is to grow and shine in some of our finest moments despite the challenges we face".

Your Board last year was up for the challenge! This past year the Board made some difficult decisions. The biggest decision was economical resulting in cancelling the Annual Conference from location in a hotel to something new-WEBINAR! One strategy used by the Board in reaching the decision was the results received from a random survey sent to 100 members, with 30 responding. The Board learned that 50% of our membership planned to attend the Annual Conference and 42% reported their employer would not support their attendance in any manner. The other strategy was applying for two grants to help defray the cost of the annual conference and to offer scholarships to members in order to attend. Neither grant was approved. We received feedback that one grant scored quite high..just not high enough!! The Board's decision has proven to be in the best interest of FAPHN. The Board approved an additional benefit by posting on the WEB site programs that provide contact hours..FREE to members. Many of these programs are the same ones planned as presentations for the conference. <http://www.faphn.org> FAPHN remained visible at the FPHA conference as willing 'Ambassadors' placed the FAPHN Display and manned the location. FAPHN sponsored the speaker for the Nursing Section of FPHA.

The 2009-2010 Board met September 19, 2009 in Naples at the Collier CHD to review FAPHN's organizational strategic plan, goals and objectives, A major objective is review of the Bylaws promoting only changes of necessity that support efficient and proficient management of FAPHN into the future. Of most importance is a focus on Membership. Committee involvement was discussed and I encourage you to review the committees and plan to participate on whichever ones appeal to you. I know you are and will continue to be busy as we go into action addressing the H1N1 and seasonal flu demands. Public Health Nurses are in the forefront to protect entire populations. I urge you to TAKE CARE of YOU during these challenges. Please let me or any Board member hear from you. Do you have stories and/or pictures to share? My e-mail: Cindy_Whetsell@doh.state.fl.us.

Most Sincerely,

Cindy Whetsell, ADN, R.N. FAPHN President 2009-2010

Ms. Stahl holds leadership roles on many community boards including the School Health Advisory Board, Chair of the Head Start Health Advisory Board, Brevard County Commission on Aging, Brevard Health Care Forum, Disabilities Assessment Project, and the University of Central Florida and Brevard Community College Nursing Advisory Boards. FAPHN HISTORY OF AWARDS and SCHOLARSHIPS

FAPHN has given Awards and Scholarships for 7 years, since August 2003. This is a total of 12 recipients. Four of the twelve scholarships were for public health nurses working to obtain an Advanced Degree. Your membership paid $6,000 in scholarships to further public health nursing. BE PROUD! FAPHN Board of Directors for 2009-2010 made a monumental decision September 19, 2009, to INCREASE the Scholarship Award to $1000, beginning with the next year's awards. Recipients of Scholarships must be members of FAPHN. Treasurer Amalia Kane-Crawford reported to the Board that FAPHN currently has $5,472.26 in the Scholarship account. Increasing the award amount indicates, at FAPHN's current accounting, only 5 scholarships are available. FAPHN received money through membership dues and through donations. Donations may be made using the DONATE NOW button on the FAPHN WEB site <http://www.faphn.org> or mailing a check to the P.O. Box or using a credit card by calling Amalia Kane-Crawford at 561-634-0776.

FAPHN SURVIVES ONLY BECAUSE OF ITS AWESOME MEMBERS! THANK YOU ONE AND ALL.

FAPHN MINI GRANT AT WORK

Translating CBPR into Nursing Practice: Closing the Health Disparities Gap is an on-going project funded by FAPHN 2008-2009. Doctorial student Catherine Levonian, MSN, R.N. is the author and a FAPHN member. A survey will be sent to all public health nurses working in Florida health departments in September-October via e-mail. The survey is a study of public health nurses' use of a community participatory approach to practice. Participants complete a web-based questionnaire, which takes approximately 10 minutes. All information is kept anonymous. It does not include your name and there is no coding that might link your responses to your identity. Participation in this survey will assist in reforming public health nursing practice. The benefit of this research is improved understanding of what needs to be addressed to improve practice. This study is approved by the University of Florida and Florida Institutional Review Boards. It is funded by FAPHN and FNF (Florida Nurses Foundation) Please contact Cathy Levonian at 352-226-7797 with questions or e-mail at Levonian@ufl.edu. Shawn Kneipp, Ph.D, ARNP is working with Catherine at the University of Florida, College of Nursing and may be reached at 352-272-6417.

HIDDEN TREASURE

Submitted by Lynda Camomilli, BSN, R.N.

Brevard County Health Department

As a Florida DOH, 25 year PHN, I have seen that change is an expected occurrence in providing community health. Nursing services, client education and clinic services are dependent on our yearly State budget. As PHNs, we pride ourselves on adjusting to the “winds of change” by our innovative ideas. Grant writing is now a frequent approach in attempting to fill in the gaps; and as nurses, a very necessary skill to obtain those innovative ideas. We have seen our nursing staff shift from 6 to 15 and back to 6 nurses; still challenged to continue to provide excellent care we have always provided to our clients. How did PHNs cope in the early years? Did they have more difficult challenges than we do?

Several years ago, I found a “treasure” in our education room! Way up on the top shelf, there was a scrapbook created by the first PHN in Brevard County. The cover is faded and falling apart, the pages are yellow and tattered; but it contains the chronological history of the first years of our CHD. I thought this find incredible!! No one knew the scrapbook was there!!

The scrapbook begins by listing the first Director, Dr. JH Wells, also a sanitarian and three nurses. The nurses names were listed with a prefix of “Mrs.” and the husbands’ first name. (A sign of the times!) Numerous newspaper clippings were glued inside documenting the growth of the CHD along with the social occasions, such as the second Director’s marriage.

The newspaper announced the opening of the office on January 1, 1947. Mrs. Clyde Strange was the nurse in charge, and it states she would be in her office daily 9 AM to 10 AM and 4 PM to 5 PM except Saturdays, 9 AM to Noon. The physician was only available on Mondays. The office was located in Titusville, possibly because the county government offices were located there.

The nurses wore the “traditional” uniform a light color dress with a matching cap, reminiscent of the Air Force flight cap (envelope style). They were pictured with the complete uniform during community events. No caps were visible in the pictures of the nurses in clinical areas.

The first undertaking was a mobile x-ray unit on a bus, which traveled to various “business sections” of the county to x-ray “every person above 15 years of age for free. At the time, the state was attempting to identify and control TB in the population. A mobile x-ray unit in the 40s is amazing and was an innovative idea!! In the first months of service, 2,600 x-rays were taken and, “you didn’t have to take off your clothes!!:

The sanitarians undertakings were described in an article showing a septic tank. The article discussed sewage issues, food inspection, and mosquito control; issues being addressed at that time.

An article announcing the “First Woman President” elected to FPHA, Miss Ruth Mettinger was displayed in the Scrapbook on a single page alone. Her picture shows a very well dressed lady wearing a large brimmed hat, tilted to one side in an Audrey Hepburn style. Miss Mettinger was the PHN Director in Florida at that time. Her first agenda was urging congressmen to oppose a merger of the health and welfare administrations. Her comment was, “Administration of Welfare was concerned only with part of the people; public health was everyone.” She appeared to be an influential woman of the times.

In 1951, clinic attendance increased from 10 a month to 80. Mrs. Flora Spencer, one of the PHNs conducted educational campaigns throughout the area with regard to the value of preventive medicine. She visited home and provided consultations in the office. A new CHD Director was appointed; Dr. Hanarhan for both Brevard and Osceola Counties. Special attention was given to school children. Physical examinations and immunizations were given at no charge. Conditions found included: malnutrition, eye and ear infections, rheumatic fever, dental problems, tonsillitis and bronchitis. The immunizations given then were Diphtheria, Pertussis, and Smallpox, (quite a small number compared to current requirements.) Another indication of the times, was a picture showing African-American children gathered for exams and vaccinations. The terms “colored people” and “whites” are used throughout the articles, listing separate times for care to be given at the clinic: eg. 9 to 11 am for “whites” and 2 to 4 pm for “colored people”.

The polio outbreak and subsequent immunizations held big headlines in 1952. The front page of the paper showed children coming to the office to be immunized. The nurses encouraged parents to bring their children in; a big undertaking that proved to be successful.

Following the outbreak of polio, there became a need for out-patient follow-up care of these children. The PHNs participated in joint rural clinics with the Crippled Children’s Commission. The children were seen at the Melbourne clinic (which had now opened) by orthopedic surgeons for continued care and evaluation.

A HIDDEN TREASURE

Numerous community committees were supportive and interactive with the PHNs as the years progressed and the population became more aware of Public Health. The Lions Club and the Rotary Club are shown with the CHD Director and PHNs receiving donated vision and hearing machines. Women’s clubs participated on committees for the promotion of school health. There is a picture showing many ladies who were community leaders and wives of physicians (some names I recognize-my pediatrician’s mother) gathered for one of the meetings.

Other important programs were developed, such as rabies. Articles describing the programs, services, and education in reporting animal bites were published in the local newspaper.

The collection of articles ends with the 70s. There is an article and picture of the immunization of the population for the Swine Flu using “air guns”. Ironically, we are likely to repeat that mass immunization this fall.

Did our county’s first nurses have more difficult issues? Probably so. Winning the trust of the community in assisting with their care is a big undertaking at the start of any program. Finding funding for services was likely difficult, as well. It also seems that there were many similar issues which we continue to deal with. They “paved the way”, so to speak. We can now deal with other issues that are extremely challenging, as well.

This wonderful compilation of historical information has led me to continue documentation for future public health nurses and persons interested in the history of our county. Our staff have shown great interest, as well. We will be having our Information Technology and Health Education Departments assist in the preservation of this scrapbook, so that future generations may feel as excited as I did in its discovery.

“It also seems that there were many similar issues which we continue to deal with.”

“There is an article and picture of the immunization of the population for the Swine Flu using ‘Air Guns’.” Ironically, we are likely to repeat that mass immunization this fall

PHN Makes Home Visit

SPOTLIGHT

Something NEW!! The Board of Directors decided that each issue of THE FAPHN VOICE will introduce a randomly selected FAPHN member to shine in the SPOTLIGHT!! MEET JUDY VALLERI, R.N., page 9

Judy Valleri is employed at the Hillsborough CHD since 2004. Judy is a STD nurse clinician and is HIV/AIDS certified (ACRN). Judy worked 1 ½ years in the TB Clinic before transferring to STD. Hillsborough CHD selected Judy as Employee of the Quarter in 2006.

Judy graduated from Isabella Graham Hart School of Nursing at Rochester General Hospital in Rochester, New York. She achieved an Associates degree from Monroe Community College in Rochester, New York. Judy proudly claims 30 years of nursing practice.

Previous experience includes 10 years in Home Health as a visiting nurse, Assistant Director of Nurses in an open heart unit in a New York Hospital, an Organ Donation Coordinator, and was the first paid position as a Disaster Nurse Specialist with the Florida American Red Cross. Judy was General Manager with the Hillsborough County Department of Aging where she supervised day care centers, provided training for care givers working with Alzheimer patients, and wrote CEU programs for the activity coordinators. Extra activities and passions include assisting with Habitat for Humanity at the Brandon Outreach Clinic, worked as a Medic with EMS services in New York while receiving fireman's training. Judy reports she is now a Stephen Minister for her church which requires her looking at situations globally while addressing the spiritual aspect.

Judy state she likes best doing admission visits. "It is the time to do patient education as well as helping each person look at his/her future. The client's first interpretation of the first visit can determine how the client's whole outlook is going to be about the care. It's their first impression, and you never get a second chance at making a first impression." Judy Valleri humbly states that she "works with a good group of people and that I am just one of the team."

FAPHN CONGRATULATES YOU , JUDY VALLERI!

Special thanks to Linda LaComb-Williams, Board Member who assumed duties as a "roving reporter".

FLORIDA PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION NURSING SECTION REPORT

Submitted by Linda LaComb-Williams, MPH, BSN, R.N.

FPHA/Southern Health Association joined forces for this year's Annual Educational Meeting August 5-7, 2009. FAPHN joined with FPHA Nursing Section and AHEC in assisting with the provision of the guest speaker. Cindy Krosky, CSP, LCSW from Achieving Corporate Excellence, Inc. was "exciting, entertaining, educational and enjoyable", writes Linda LaComb-Williams when reporting on Ms. Krosky's speech titled; "Making the Public Health Connection: Putting the Pieces Together"

"Although our section was small this year, we still enjoyed getting together", reports Linda. Students from the University of Florida attended the business meeting, according to Linda and Dr. Little plans to work with her students in the Spring of 2010 on a survey of the FPHA Nursing Section members to determine what other avenues of communication may be helpful other than an annual meeting. Linda writes that the "travel restrictions were so tight this year, it did make it difficult for many of you to attend; however I am hoping we can work together to keep the unit afloat."

The Business meeting was brief with no elections. Linda continues to serve as co-chair of the nursing section. By-laws are proposed and will be posted in the Nursing Section of the FPHA Website. Linda LaComb-Williams may be reached at email Linda_LaComb-Williams@doh.state.fl.us and telephone (813) 307-8015 x 6317. Share your thoughts and ideas for the Nursing Section of FPHA.

Breast Cancer Dip Linked to Locale, Income, HRT Decline: According to Peggy Peck, Executive Editor of Med-Page Today published June 26, 2009, a new study indicates from 2001-2004 an overall incidence of invasive breast cancer fell by 13.8% in urban areas, versus a 7.5% decline in rural areas. This report is supported by Amelia K. Hausauer, Ph.D. of the Northern California Cancer Center in Fremont, and her colleagues. Invasive Breast cancer rates fell by 13% in neighborhoods in high income counties, compared to 9.6% decline in poor counties reported in same study. The authors said the report was limited by a lack of individual socioeconomic information and a lack of adjustment for possible delays in reporting.
